Often, graduate students practice a variety of active forms of training in the form of group discussions, practice-oriented seminars, and business games. These forms of work with masters are not reflected in the class schedule, which is usually posted on the official website of the federal university. Nevertheless, such active forms of training are very important in the formation of professional competencies of a manager. Alerts about the dates and places of such classes, the composition of experts taking part in them, it is possible to carry out through the service “urgent information” of the electronic office.

When writing a master's thesis or preparing course projects, a graduate student is constantly faced with the need to search for design templates, structure and content of projects, so all the necessary information should be stored in one place. Typically, an engineer or teacher of the department makes a mass mailing to undergraduates, in which the necessary templates and documentation are attached. But practice shows that the requirements often change, and often force majeure, the student’s contact information also changes. Therefore, you need a service with round-the-clock access, in which information will be updated promptly.

Often, undergraduate students do not always remember the presence of debts in a number of disciplines or the deadlines for the delivery of the necessary home, control, laboratory or practical work. This problem is solved by such a function of the electronic cabinet as the electronic sheet. This sheet demonstrates in semester terms: what subjects, tests or exams must be passed to the graduate student in the next session, what disciplines he has already passed and what grades he has already received.

- Best Essay Writing Service in USA
- Elite Essay Writers